THIRTY-FIVE CENTS

Conditions blamed for jail fights

Sheriff's officials said they are enraged at circumstances that led to the beating of a new inmate at the Madison County Jail.

The inmate, jailed on charges of aggravated battery, was attacked by four or five prisoners in his cellblock about 12:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Officials associate the assault with inmate frustration from extreme overcrowding and said they are furious about the apparent lack of solutions.

"We are experiencing some very serious difficulties in the jail," Sheriff Bob Churchich said. "Some of the guards have indicated to me that there are some serious problems about to happen in the jail."

Conditions worsened shortly after the attack, but by then several other inmates in the block had left their cells, bringing to 10 the total number involved.

The inmates refused to immediately return to their cellblock. About seven sheriff's deputies responded quickly to the scene and a K-9 unit was requested, but no inmate returned to their cells before the dogs arrived.

The victim suffered several cuts and bruises but was not seriously injured nor hospitalized. However, the cellblock has been locked down.

Capt. James Newsome, jail superintendent, said the prisoners involved in the attack had been in their cells indefinitely. The victim has been moved to another cellblock.

The Sheriff's Department places a high priority on a sluggish judicial system. Officials said criminal cases are moving too slow, which lets inmates sit indefinitely in the County Jail when they should be in a state penitentiary.

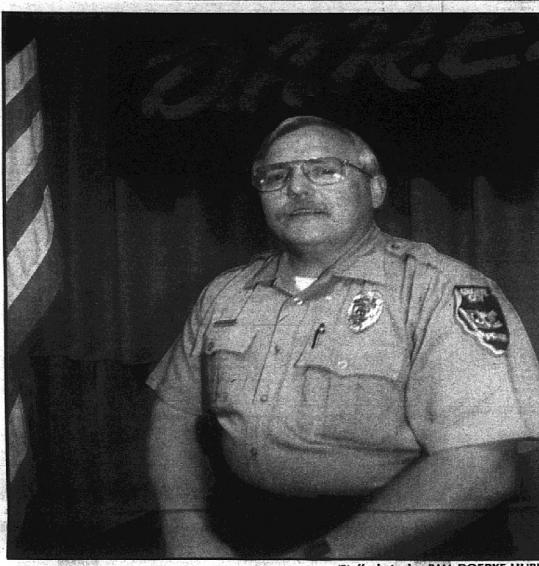

"It's getting to the point," said Chief Deputy Raymond "Bud" Galloway. "These people should be in a maximum-security prison."

He said he thinks an inmate convicted of five murders but still awaiting sentencing was involved in the attack. The inmate has been held in the County Jail for more than two years, Galloway said.

"Would you feel secure sleeping at night knowing that he is in a county jail?"

Some officials said they aren't getting answers as to why many criminal cases are being held up in the system.

"We're not told why," Churchich said. "We don't have any of the information about why" (See JAIL, Page 10A).

Granite City's first DARE officer, Walter Milton Jr., who has helped educate thousands of Granite City sixth-grade students about drugs over the past six years.

Walter Milton honored

Teacher also a cop

By Bob Slatte
Staff writer

Most Granite City school children know Walter Milton Jr., the teacher.

Since 1988, Milton has been the primary teacher of the Drug Abuse Resistance Education curriculum in elementary schools. This year, he taught the DARE program at the junior high school level. But Milton is a police officer first.

"Most people don't realize I am also a police officer. They think they just gave me a job and the public relations job," Milton said.

Milton said he hopes that in his role as a teacher, by instilling the values promoted in the DARE program, to avoid future dealings with his students in his role as police officer.

Yet, the high-profile image created by him as DARE officer has helped diffuse more than one potentially explosive situation.

"There are times when I walk into the room and people say, 'That's Officer Milton.' They better know who I am familiar with my people to calm down," Milton said.

He said the DARE program is especially effective in influencing kids "on the fence."

"There are always going to be people who are not going to participate in illegal activities and there are others who are going to do illegal things just to rebel," he said.

College diamonds await 5

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

With their high school careers just behind them, a handful of Granite City High School baseball players are now looking ahead to the next level.

Five Warriors, Scott Nemeth, Jason Wood, Matt Tieman, Jason Tally and Brian Etherton, have committed to play college baseball next year. They will join several other Granite City products who have made the jump to college baseball in recent years.

"We have a lot of talent here and we want them to play," Granite City coach Guy Lignouli said. "I think it's important that some of these kids will get an opportunity to earn something."

"They could become very good players if they really work hard at it. They have to take it to another level."

Nemeth, a catcher, and a third base starter who hit .333 with the Warriors this season, has committed to Belleville Area College. Wood, an outfielder, is headed to St. Louis University, where he will walk on as a freshman and look to earn a scholarship with the Division I school. Wood, the Warriors' top hitter this season, batted .300.

Circuit clerk's office getting new computer system

By Scott Wuerz
Staff writer

The Madison County Circuit Clerk's Office is trying to get an early start on the 21st Century with a new computer automation system.

Increasing population in the county has caused the volume of cases the clerk's office handles to soar, Circuit Clerk Matt Melucci said. But the new system will hopefully allow the office's employees to keep up with the workload.

"The number of cases in our felony and family divisions has skyrocketed over the last two years," Melucci said. "They're bringing an addition onto the County Jail, and that's a bad sign."

The $475,000 system, which has already been installed in the office, is expected to be completely up and running by the end of 1996.

"This is a major step in achieving efficiency and cost savings for the county and the taxpayers," Melucci said.

"We have been handling the increasing caseload with no increase in staff size. Our progression of automation will relieve information processing and access speed."

Clerks in each of the department's four divisions — family, traffic, criminal and civil — will be able to tap into the computer system to access and update files directly from the courtroom while hearings are in session.

"We've been using the system in the family division for two weeks and it's been running without a glitch," Melucci said.

"We have a terminal on the counter which enables the public to access records and information about their case, they can call their file up on the screen."

Previously the public had to request assistance from clerks. Once the system is on-line in the main courthouse in Edwardsville, officials will begin connecting the satellite courthouse in Alton, Alton, Collville and Granite City.

The Circuit Clerk's Office handled about 72,000 cases in 1994, Melucci said. The number of cases in the family division, which includes child abuse, support and adoption cases, has increased by 29 percent in the last two years.

Suzanne Bedell, the office's supervisor of automation, said before the new system was available, court clerks were unable to be productive when they were required to be in court.

Filing of documents and scheduling of hearings had to be done in the clerk's office. Clerks had to file a paper file. But now they can actually do two jobs at once: They're present in the courtroom to assist judges, and they can do their paperwork at the same time.

Flood puts a damper on commercial fishing

Recreational fishermen have lined up daily to toss their lines in floodwater, but for commercial fishermen, the flood has been no fun.

Fisherman Randy Watters of Hanley, Mo., who has been hauling in nets loaded with catfish, buffalos and other river fish for more than 18 years, said he has not been able to work in the waters for more than two weeks because of traffic restrictions on the rivers.

"I've lost about 90 percent of my business because the river is so high it floods out," Watters, 34, said. "Even if we had the fish, there's no where to go with them."

The flooded Mississippi River opened Monday to northbound barge traffic. Robert Siddall, chief of port operations for the U.S. Coast Guard in St. Louis, said late last week, "It depends on where (commercial fishermen) are going and what they're doing."

"Some want to fish a farmer's field off the river with nets, and that's no problem. No rivers are affected. But some people want to go to boats that are slogan in the river, and they can't do that. If we let them, we have to let everyone."

Siddall said the Coast Guard's main concern during high water is maintaining the integrity of levees. But if someone has to get to navigable waters or a harbor for safety reasons, such as a medical emergency, and some of their home or harbored boat, Siddall said he would consider it.

"We try the best we can to answer each (request) individually and not draw a line across the river," Siddall said.

"We try to protect boaters and property (including levees), but we don't want to put people out of business."

Oliver Ready has been forced to shut his fish market and O'Jan's Fish Stand in Grafton due to floodwaters. The pole barn at his rural home has been turned into a makeshift workhouse for what fish he can get from northern lakes and rivers.

"This makes it rough on us," Ready said. "The fish business has a lot of ups and downs, and it's a hardship trying to work right now."

HE'S BACK...THIS TIME WITH A VENGEANCE

DOLE HARD II

My view

Success is a matter of definition

In recent weeks, in separate cities, I've had two interesting and related conversations with old friends concerning personal success.

The first was with someone who grew up in my old neighborhood in Chicago about 10 years before I did. The years have shrunk the difference between our ages and we periodically run into each other and reminisce about "the old neighborhood."

My friend has bounced around from job to job and city to city over the years, often (I suspect) just barely providing a living for his large family.

One night recently, in the warm flush of shared memories and Irish coffee, he confided in me that, you know, his job "I've got now isn't much." I make just enough to get along. But I've got no complaints. Life has been good to me. All my life I have been able to go my own way, do my own thing, and even if I've never made a lot of money at it,

Don Miller

I made enough to keep my family fed and still work at what I enjoyed doing. I've really had a great life and wouldn't do a thing different.

The other friend, I did it to over. This friend passed and laughed. "Well, not much different, anyway."

I really didn't think much of the conversation at the time until I ran across another old friend at a recent convention. We had been the very best of friends while starting out in newspaper management 20 years ago. We still caught up with each other eagerly to renew old acquaintances. I hadn't seen him in years.

My friend is the president of a $25-million-dollar-a-year newspaper group and fits anyone's description of a self-made man. He is wealthy, if not rich. He has succeeded without a college education in a bitterly competitive industry by intelligence and extremely hard work.

He is still married to his high school sweetheart and their children are all attractive, intelligent and athletic. Not one of his children has ever been in trouble.

We got together early one morning for breakfast to talk about our families, friends and jobs. After a few minutes, he blurted out: "I hate to come to these damn conventions. All these bright, successful people remind me of what a failure I am and I hate it."

"You know, I've always wanted my own business and started one once, but it failed away from the security of a large corporation and weekly paychecks.

"It's hell to get up in the morning and have to look at yourself in the mirror knowing you're a complete failure."

What a sad, depressing conversation, not just about my friend, but I suspect about many of us. A poet once wrote, "The majority of men live lives of quiet desperation." Twenty years ago I couldn't understand what he meant. Today I do.

I'm afraid that the general social definition of success has no relationship to the real measurement of success and failure, for it's apparent that success or failure cannot be measured by the acquisition or loss of material goods, jobs or wealth.

Each person measures success in his or her own mind and to their own standards, often with surprising results. Unfortunately all too often our own mind can be our severest critic, and one we can do little about.

Moral issues and the enormity of war

Sometime back in '84 I bought a book, "Sherman's March to the Sea," by James Reston Jr., read it and found it informative, and shelved it for future reference.

The purchase was made on the basis of a good review, a personal interest in the Civil War, and the fact that the author is a son of James "Scotty" Reston, a journalist I hold in high regard.

Last week, preparatory to mailing the book to my cousin Chuck, who shares some of my interests and has not read it, I pulled it off the shelf and re-read it, chiefly to refresh my memory, but also because reviews of Robert McNamara's recently published "In Retrospect" had stirred some recollections of Reston's earlier works.

Reston addresses the parallels between our two most tragic wars, the enormity of total war, and the moral issues raised by both conflicts.

About half the book deals with Sherman's march, from northwest Georgia to the sea — en route dispersing some of the population and the extent of the ravages attributed to him — and presents a man very different from the cardboard monster a few unreconstructed Southerners still remember.

Probably one of the most interesting sections of the book deals with events rarely mentioned in the history books we grew up with, such as Sherman's efforts to gain a surrender from Confederate Gen. Joseph Johnston, following Lee's surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox.

The second half of the book is devoted to Vietnam, and Reston deals harshly with his generation's war.

In Reston's delineation of that conflict, but in terms of McNamara's book, it draws some interesting parallels between Sherman and McNa- mara.

Reston writes, for example, that Sherman's enthusiasm for attaining a peace settlement with Johnston was based on his awareness of his own responsibility as an army-villager following the fabled march, and his belief that he could atone for it, if he could arrange for a universal peace. One bold stroke he could sweep away all he had done before, all that had been said of him as the barbaric warlord, and all that would be said of him when history took over." Reston wrote in '84, adding, "After Vietnam, only Robert McNamara would have the same impulsion."

Writing 11 years ago, Reston faulted McNamara (as well as Dean Rusk, McGeorge and William Bundy) for failure to continue to examine his war, and to do their own mistakes as architects of the war, especially McNamara for his "stoney silence."

Yet his fairness, he details personal sufferings the man endured: public confrontations, a bodily attack on him, an uncovered arson plot against his home on Martha's Vineyard, as well as his belief that the anguish of Vietnam contributed to the early death of his wife and alienation of a son and daughter.

And Reston writes that he believes that McNamara's presidency of the World Bank was guided chiefly by his desire for atonement. "His impulse was the Sherman impulse at the beginning of the march, engaged in good works for many years as a leader in the efforts for nuclear disarmament."

"In Retrospect" apparently bears out Reston's theory. The published mea culpa and search for atonement, though, may have come too late, judging by public reaction to the book.

And though I think the book will eventually have historic value, I'm not ready to read it.

Absolution, for McNamara, will be hard, if not impossible, to obtain from those who are entitled to give it, the people who were there.

Is a car lease right for you?

The ads are tempting. Dealers are making monthly payments and low monthly payments to lease a brand new car. No wonder one in four new cars last year was leased. If you're considering whether leasing might make sense for you, answer the following questions:

✓ Are you ready to do the legwork? It's hard to keep up with the jargon (residual value, capitalized cost, gap insurance), doing complicated math and reading the fine print.

✓ Do you want to avoid a large down payment? Little or no down payment is one of the primary attractions of leasing.

✓ Do you hate to do the math? If you don't pay, you don't lease.

✓ Do you use your car for business? If you do, all or a healthy portion of your car's depreciation for taxes, leasing may be a better after-tax deal

✓ Do you like buying new cars? Leasing makes more sense for new car buyers. If you're satisfied with used cars, skip leasing. You're better off using the savings for other financial needs.

✓ How long do you intend to drive the car? Leases generally are designed for two to four years. If you like to buy a car every year, or you drive a car several years, leasing is usually a better deal.

✓ How much do you drive? If you drive around 15,000 miles a year, leasing may make sense. If you drive substantially less than that, you're paying for depreciation you're not causing.

Above 15,000, you'll pay for the extra mileage.

✓ Do you take good care of your cars? If you or your kids are hard on cars, think twice about leasing. Most lease deals require you to pay for "excess wear and tear."

✓ Will you keep the car for the length of the lease? You have to stick to buying.

Getting out early on a lease can cost you plenty.

✓ Do you qualify? Because there is little or no down payment required, credit standards are typically higher for lessees.

Car dealers and manufacturers have fallen in love with leasing because it moves cars, builds customer loyalty and attracts younger buyers to luxury cars. Thus, there are plenty of good leasing deals around. You just have to be willing to do your homework.

'Overworked?' Economists say that most of us are not

By Roger McGrath

Correspondent

One common topic of Memorial Day picnics was leisure time. Or more accurately, lack of leisure time. The common perception seems to be that we're working more and thus, have less time to enjoy life, a situation that's led some politicians to consider remedies that would boost leisure time.

Such remedies aren't new. Two economists at the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland argue.

The overall number of leisure hours has not declined for American families, according to economists Kristin Roberts and Peter Rupert. We are simply spending more time, they say, working in the marketplace and fewer hours in home production—cooking, mowing the lawn, etc. Women are the prime movers.

in this swapping of unpaid home work for more hours on the job—“trade of uncompensated labor” that fattens the paycheck, they write in Economic Commentary, a newsletter published by the Cleveland Fed.

For families, households substitute capital equipment—the microwave—for labor in production of a meal, for example. Such a substitution “leads to making the household better off,” Roberts and Rupert say.

They found that working women trimmed their home production module by four hours a week in 1988, the latest year available, from 20 in 1976—and boosted for-pay hours by two to 41.

Roberts and Rupert arrive at a conclusion. Since true leisure time—the hours not spent earning a paycheck or doing household chores—hasn't declined, there's no need for legislation “to remedy a leisure time shortage that does not exist.”

Lakin said he has taken some heat from residents about the limited hours, but that it has been necessary to get the mess cleaned up. Now that much of the debris has been removed, the hours will soon be expanded — possibly this week — to include evenings and weekends, Lakin said.

"But I definitely won't let it get in the condition it was in before," Lakin said.

sions on his shift alone (3-11 p.m.) in the past five or six months.

"I appreciate what you are trying to do," Tapp told Peavy. "With a great majority of your tenants are ex-convicts. One is on parole for shooting a police officer and he is constantly getting into fights."

Tapp said the department is currently investigating a burglary at one of the upstairs apartments and the suspect is a downstairs tenant. The current rent on tenant is currently on hold for burglary.

"It's our responsibility to know the hot spots. These are the people we deal with. We get mixed up with them because it is our job. Right now, we aren't taking care of this problem," Tapp told the board. "The department urges you to overturn this permit."

Jack Jenkins, an attorney and member of the Downtown Neighborhood Restoration Society, Jack Jenkins, an organist and ordained minister on staff at nearby First Presbyterian Church, John Ryan, and Ralph Walden, all nearby residents, said that the building is not being used in the manner agreed by the commissioners.

"I was misled (at the hearing in 1990) and believed this man. Our neighborhood is being destroyed. It should be closed completely," Walden said.

Bill Knapp, attorney who said he is representing the ministry at no charge, suggested that the Planning and Zoning Commission review the matter in three months to see if the disturbance disappears with the problem tenant.

But the commissioners said that the permit must be revoked if the building's use has changed from that stated in the permit application.

There is no question about the good intentions of Mr. Peavy. But the bottom line is (the building) is not in compliance with the law and the permit should be revoked," board member Brad Erickson said.

"We are not attacking the benevolent intent (of the ministry), but we have to consider the community and comply with laws," said board chairman Butch Peterson. "Nowhere was permission granted to use the building as a boarding or rooming house."

The Planning and Zoning Commission is an advisory board. The matter is expected to come before the City Council June 20.

Police Chief Dave Ruebhausen said he is in the process of revoking the special exemption permit.

"We've had nothing but problems over there," Ruebhausen said.

"Police are there way too often, in my opinion. We have had officers forced into physical altercations with these residents," Ruebhausen said.

There is no question about the good intentions of Mr. Peavy. But the bottom line is (the building) is not in compliance with the law and the permit should be revoked," board member Brad Erickson said.

"We are not attacking the benevolent intent (of the ministry), but we have to consider the community and comply with laws," said board chairman Butch Peterson. "Nowhere was permission granted to use the building as a boarding or rooming house."

The Planning and Zoning Commission is an advisory board. The matter is expected to come before the City Council June 20.

Police Chief Dave Ruebhausen said he is in the process of revoking the special exemption permit.

"We've had nothing but problems over there," Ruebhausen said.

"Police are there way too often, in my opinion. We have had officers forced into physical altercations with these residents," Ruebhausen said.

"I was misled (at the hearing in 1990) and believed this man. Our neighborhood is being destroyed. It should be closed completely," Walden said.

Bill Knapp, attorney who said he is representing the ministry at no charge, suggested that the Planning and Zoning Commission review the matter in three months to see if the disturbance disappears with the problem tenant.

But the commissioners said that the permit must be revoked if the building's use has changed from that stated in the permit application.

Facts and fables on Baggers & Mulchers by the experts at

FRANK'S

This is a subject that's caused much debate for some time now, and it probably always will. Which is best, bagging the grass clippings or mulching them back into the lawn? Here are some facts that may surprise you.

For starters, the choice may largely depend on where you live. If your community has severe restrictions on yard waste collection, the choice is easy. Unless, however, you don't mind hauling the stuff off to someone who will accept it.

If your community will pick the clippings up, fine. They won't be around long enough to really cause any trouble, as long as you store them in a plastic bag or other suitable container until trash day.

If you collect the clippings, don't forget and leave them lying around for more than a few days. They'll begin to rot and generate heat. If you ever have taken a whiff of old, decaying grass clippings, well, now no more need to be said.

With a mulching mower, the grass clippings are chopped up into fine pieces and dropped back onto the lawn, where they serve as mulch. There are some drawbacks, but not many. First, you can't let the grass get too long or the mower won't do a good job of mulching the clippings. The same's true if the grass is wet.

Returning the clippings to the lawn permits recycling of nutrients into the grass. By doing this, the nitrogen needs of the lawn can be reduced by 20% to 40%, and that's quite significant.

Some folks believe that clippings build up in the lawn, therefore making it necessary to de-thatch more often. Not true at all. Grass clippings are mostly water, and small amounts of them decompose fast. Fast enough so I never had to worry about mulching the clippings. The same's true if the grass is wet.

Many think that if you mulch the clippings, you'll

Diabetes class being offered at SEMC

Are you a diabetic?

"You're not alone," said Kathy Haarmann, RN, B.S.N. and certified diabetes educator. "There is no cure for diabetes, but there is a lot of information available that can help diabetics lead full lives and avoid further complications."

Haarmann, the patient education coordinator at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, will be part of the teaching team in a free "Take Charge of Your Diabetes" class offered at SEMC.

The class will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 14, in the Auditorium on the lower level of SEMC, 2100 Madison in Alton.

The class will include a variety of information about the disease and ways to manage it.

A registered dietitian will present nutrition information related to diabetes, including information on sweeteners, fiber, label reading and more.

A pharmacist will speak on medications, including insulin and oral agents.

Diabetes is the number one cause of new blindness and the third leading cause of death by disease in this country. You owe it to yourself to find out if you can benefit.

The class is free; however, space is limited. Preregistration is required. For more information or to preregister, call the SEMC Education Resources Department at 798-3201.

Pro boxing card
spotlights area

Believe it or not, there was a time when Belleville was a hotbed of amateur boxing — the efforts of the late Lou Moeckel.

No wonder why I'm hopeful for the June 19 pro boxing card scheduled at a place called "A Little Bit of Texas" off I-70 in Earth City, Mo.

YOU SEE, THERE will be a little bit of Belleville at the 7:30 p.m. card in the form of KO Promotions' vice-president Rick Myers, who not only fought on Moeckel-designed amateur cards but also on pro programs by Lou.

After watching other promotional groups try to bring pro boxing to the St. Louis area, Myers has put together an eight-round evening featuring three of the former boxer's sons.

Heavyweight champion Leon Spinks and his son Darryl "Kid" Calvin Spinks.

Opposing the elder Spinks, no. 21, will be former Waterloo resident Ray "Mundo" Kipping for what is being called the International Boxing Association U.S. heavyweight championship. "He's going to knock him out," said Steve Frank, the KO Promotions president who has watched Kipping during workouts at USA Boxing and Fitness in Pontoon Beach.

AT 6-6, KIPPING is able to dunk a basketball and is considered a versatile athlete. But in addition to his left hook and range make him a threat to the experienced Spinks.

A former St. Louis Golden Gloves champion, Kipping is 30 years old, with eight knockouts and an 8-2 record.

"He's really developed recently, he's sparring and is taking this very seriously," Frank said of Kipping.

That attitude is something that should prevail in the form of the June 19 pro boxing card, including "King" Arthur Jimmerson of St. Louis and Jerry "Wimpy" Halstead of Oklahoma City in a 190-pound bout, and 130-pound Harold Petty of St. Louis.

OVERTIME: In the alphabet world of boxing associations, there are a few who either had or won on to claim titles. Darryl Spinks, 20, weighs 175 and is 3-0 as a pro. Tickets for the card can be purchased by phoning Myers at 358-0019, St. Kippin, at 2820 or Frank at (314) 833-4337.

EXTRA INNINGS: While baseball can be part of some high schools in the form of getting fo involved with sports, the Lancer Booster Club at Belleville East proved otherwise recently.

The Lancer Boosters were responsible for organizing a retirement dinner for athletic director Dennis Bechtold, who was most appreciative of the evening at Fenton's Restaurant.

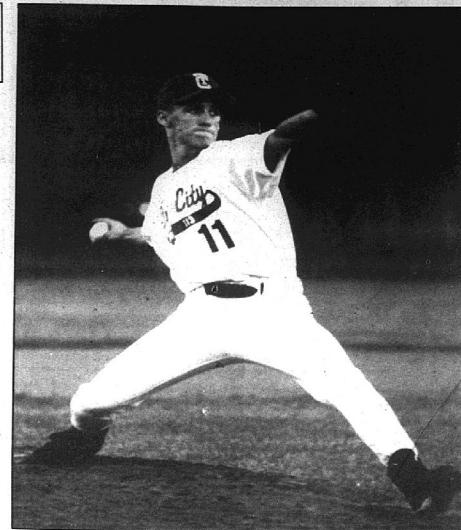

"It was very special having my family, friends and coaches throughout the area there," said Bechtold, who served as East AD for 18 years and taught there for 28 years after serving three years previously at West Junior High.

Of his memories, Bechtold referred to several East teams and individuals that either advanced to state or won a state crown (the Lancers won a state softball title), but said he came up short on the field during last month's National Senior Olympics in San Antonio, Texas.

The Old Rookies 65 men's softball squad made up of players from Granite City and the rest of the Metro East area, competed in the National Senior Olympics for the third time, after winning an Illinois state title last year. But the team played short-handed because of injuries and departed the tourney two games after winning its opener May 18.

IN THEIR FINAL game, the Old Rookies lost 10-4 to a team from Wisconsin that won a bronze medal at the Olympics in 1993 in Baton Rouge, La. Team manager Boyd McCommis said the Old Rookies missed several key players against the Wisconsin team.

"They were very good," play-

Tri-City pitcher Billy Niepert winds up.

Juniors edge
Wood River

Ryan Relleke smacked a go-ahead RBI double in the third inning, and three pitchers combined to lead the Junior Triplets past Wood River 3-1 Friday night.

Tri-City starter Paul Kacera and relief pitcher Dustin Brewer and Chris Fiala combined on the mound, with Kacera recording the win. Fiala earned a save.

After falling behind early 1-0, the Juniors (3-1) tied the score and then took the lead on Relleke's double. Tri-City scored a run on a wild pitch in the fifth, and Relleke made a key defensive stop at first base in the sixth on a line-out liner to preserve the lead.

Brewer worked the fifth and sixth innings, and Fiala came on in the seventh to close out the win.

"We got timely hitting," Tri-City manager Chad Lignoul said. "Pitching and defense were the key to the game."

Tri-City is scheduled to play Edwardsville at 4 p.m. today.

Old Rookies
outlasted in
Sr. Olympics

The Southwestern Illinois Old Rookies had plenty of veteran leadership on the bench but came up short on the field during last month's National Senior Olympics in San Antonio, Texas.

The Old Rookies 65 men's softball squad made up of players from Granite City and the rest of the Metro East area, competed in the National Senior Olympics for the third time, after winning an Illinois state title last year. But the team played short-handed because of injuries and departed the tourney two games after winning its opener May 18.

IN THEIR FINAL game, the Old Rookies lost 10-4 to a team from Wisconsin that won a bronze medal at the Olympics in 1993 in Baton Rouge, La. Team manager Boyd McCommis said the Old Rookies missed several key players against the Wisconsin team.

"They were very good," player-manager Boyd McCommis said. "We had some guys hurt, but the effort they put in was just remarkable. I was so proud of them."

The team's first two games both went into extra innings. In its first game, against a team from Florida, the Old Rookies prevailed 7-6 in eighth inning.

They then met a team from Oklahoma in the second round for a berth to the tournament quarterfinals. The teams entered extra innings at 11.

THE OLD ROOKIES scored two runs in the top of the eighth to take a 13-11 lead, but surrendered three runs in the bottom

"The games were so competitive," McCommis said. "You didn't have to ask for a better effort."

Old Rookies pitcher Stan Serwata started and worked all three games. The team's shortstop, Jack Scarborough, led the way at the plate with nine hits in

Triplets rally, hold off Wood River 5-4

By Garen Vartanian
Correspondent

The old adage "when the going gets tough, the tough get going" was perfect to describe the performance of Tri-City Post 113 Friday night.

The Triplets (1-1) overcame 3-1 and 4-2 deficits in the bottom of the seventh and eighth innings, respectively, to defeat Wood River Post 204 (2-1) 5-4.

"THIS IS a super win for our ballclub," Tri-City manager Doug Winfield said. "We got timely hitting and great pitching."

Indeed, Tri-City received a well pitched game by Matt Tieman and strong relief work by Jeremy Hoback. In six innings of work, Tieman allowed just five hits and one earned run while only allowing one base on balls and striking out four. Hoback, who picked up the win, fired two innings of two-hitter ball. He surrendered one run, gave up one walk and fanned four.

The Triplets did not get their timely hitting until late in the game, due mostly in part to a well-pitched contest by Wood River starter Nick Knight. Over the first six frames, Knight allowed only three safeties, walked none and struck out six. After allowing two of the first three men to score on a walk, Knight retired 17 of 18 heading into the final frame.

In the top of the eighth, Jess Buttry stroked a one-out triple. With the infield in, Hoback struck out the next two, including Miles Vandiver. Just when it looked like Hoback would escape the jam, Tim Weckhorst delivered an infield hit to plate Buttry and once again give Wood River the lead at 4-3.

Yet, Tri-City clawed its way right back. Billy Niepert led off the inning with a single and came around to score on Shain Kuehnel's triple. With one out, Kuehnel struck out Brian Lloyd for the first out of the inning.

After an intentional walk to Jason Wood, Roe brought home Kuehnel with a line drive single to right field.

JUST AS WINFIELD was ecstatic with the victory, Ufert was jubilant.

"THIS is a tough game to lose," Ufert said. "Our team is pitching and defense. And we only made one error tonight, but it was a bad one."

"But we have to give (Tri-City) credit, because they played good and didn't quit. This is just a tough game to lose for either side."

Until the seventh, the game looked anything but losable for Wood River, as the Oilers scored two runs in the opening frame.

PRIOR LED OFF the game by reaching on an error. After being sacrificed to second and with one out, Brady Arview

O'Fallon,
Ames end
year at state

By Scott Marion
Staff writer

The O'Fallon Panthers didn't earn a victory at the recent girls state soccer tournament, but they gained plenty of respect.

O'Fallon had its best season in school history, finishing 21-4 and beating Granite City and Springfield in the final two rounds of the sectionals.

O'Fallon had a solid effort against Naperville Central in the state quarterfinals, losing 2-1 at Hoffman Estates before losing 2-1 in the second overtime.

"WE HOPE WHAT we accomplished this year will pick up the program's momentum," said Panthers coach Dave Ames, who has been to state several times as an assistant to Gene Baker with the Granite City High boys team.

"We hope it will be a real attraction and help the younger kids who are playing soccer. Now they have proof they can go places."

Naperville Central, unlike O'Fallon, was no stranger to state tournament competition. The Redhawks earned second in 1994 and placed second again this year to Palatine.

"Our kids were nervous, and I think their inexperience had a lot to do with the way they played," said Ames, a Granite City resident. "Obviously, some kids were feeling a lot of stress playing in something like that for the first time."

NAVERVILLE CENTRAL took a 1-0 lead early in the second half, but the Panthers sent the game into overtime on a goal by junior Ellen Wallace. About two minutes left in regulation, The Redhawks won the game on a goal by All-State forward Anne Mucci with 2:48 left in the second overtime.

"That was really hard for me," Ames said. "We had picked up a late bit (after Wallace's goal) and played a scoreless first overtime. By the end of the second overtime, we had put out a lot of energy. But (Mucci's game-winner) was a good goal; it wasn't something lucky thing."

O'Fallon's goalkeepers, senior Kari Olson and sophomore Kelly Irwin, split time in the net throughout the season and combined for 16 shutouts.

The top scorers were freshman Amy Young (12), Wallace and sophomore Jenny Rosen (nine each) and senior Beth Albrecht (seven). Panthers players scored at least one goal for the Panthers.
